

About the teacher

Ms. Ema Stefanova has a Master's degree in TESOL (Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages) and 25+ years of rich professional teaching experience globally. She also holds Bachelors' degrees in Electrical Engineering, as well as English Language and Literature. She speaks and translates into and from five languages, and has traveled extensively in Asia, Europe, and the Americas.

Since 1991 Ema has taught English as a Second Language (ESL) at college and university in the Ann Arbor area. She has also taught Macedonian at the University of Michigan and the University of Pittsburgh. She currently teaches all levels of General, Academic and Special Purposes English (ESP), as well as Macedonian, Serbian, Bosnian and Croatian.

Ema is available for professional interpreting assignments by appointment, as well as translation into and from above languages.

About Our Clients

We custom design and teach small group classes, private, and semi-private tutorials for client's needs. Our students include busy professional men and women working for international and American companies as well as their families. University of Michigan International GMBA, LL.M Medical, Engineering and other graduate students, visiting scholars, and researchers from Japan, South Korea, Germany, Brazil, Mexico, China, Indonesia, Italy, Turkey, and other countries also enjoy our classes.

We have enjoyed working with Toyota, Denso, Mitsubishi, Horiba Instruments, Hyundai, Siemens, Subaru, Yazaki, Terumo, Bosch and many other company employees and their families. We look forward to serving you next! Please, feel free to call and e-mail us for more information!
