

About the teacher

Ema Stefanova has a Master's degree in TESOL (Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages) and many years of rich professional teaching experience internationally. She also holds Bachelors' degrees in English Language and Literature as well as Electrical Engineering. Ema has traveled extensively in Europe, Asia and the Americas.

Ema has taught English as a Second Language (ESL) at college and university level. She has also taught Macedonian at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor and the University of Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. She currently teaches all levels of English, including ESP, Academic, Business and Legal English.

Professional translating, interpreting and language instruction are also available in Macedonian, Serbian, Bosnian and Croatian.

About our services

We custom design and teach private, and semi-private tutorials, and small group classes for clients' needs.

Our students include busy professional men and women working for international and American companies, and their families, as well as visiting scholars, researchers, graduate and other students from Japan, S. Korea, Germany, Brazil, Mexico, China, Italy, and other countries from around the globe doing important work and pursuing LL.M, GMBA, Medical, Engineering and other degrees.

University of Michigan, Toyota Motors, Siemens, Subaru, and Hyndai, have been among our regular clients over the years. We look forward to serving you next! Please, feel free to call and e-mail us for more information!
